Nomination of Reversionary Income Stream Beneficiary

You can nominate your dependant to receive your income stream on your death. A reversionary beneficiary nomination is binding on the Trustee and will not prevent your dependant from commuting (changing) the income stream to a lump sum if they wish. However, the law may require some beneficiaries to take the money as lump sum - please refer to our website for details.

I would like to add my dependant as a reversionary beneficiary for my income stream (this will cancel any previous nominations for this account)

I would like to cancel the reversionary beneficiary for my income stream

If you do not want to have a reversionary nomination, you can make (or update) a non-binding beneficiary nomination at any time via AOL at www.avsuper.com.au or by completing a Nomination of beneficiaries form. This nomination helps the Trustee decide who should receive the benefit payable from the Fund if you die while a member.

To make a legally binding nomination of beneficiaries, send us a witnessed, complete Nomination of beneficiaries form (available from our website).
